

Arthur Wins Contract for Auditorium

Stanley H. Arthur, architect, was awarded another contract by Rockville this week to design and supervise construction of $120,000 worth of work at the city's new Civic Center auditorium.

Arthur already has the contract to design and supervise construction of the auditorium's gross structure. This week, he won a contract to design the building's interior lobby, control booth for electrical devices, a front canopy for the building, stage and house lights, and air-conditioning.

He will be paid four per cent for designing and two per cent for supervising the construction named above. While no time for start of this additional work was set, Arthur's contract remains in force for three years.
